Gardens for all seasons

At Aigburth, the gardens are much more than just outdoor spaces - they're places to relax, connect, and enjoy nature.

Beautifully landscaped and maintained with the support of our volunteers, the gardens feature vibrant flowerbeds, shaded seating areas, and accessible pathways, creating a peaceful haven for all.

Volunteers play a key role in running the clubs, especially the Gardening Club. The indoor Gardening Club provides an opportunity for residents to nurture plants and experience the therapeutic benefits of greenery. Seasonal activities, such as summer BBQs and autumn harvest celebrations, bring everyone together, fostering a sense of community and connection.

The sensory room on the Rosedale floor complements these experiences with a calm indoor space, featuring soft lights, soothing sounds, and sensory resources tailored to residents, including those living with dementia.

Nearby attractions, such as the University of Leicester Botanical Gardens, also offer opportunities to explore and connect to the wider community, enriching the lives of Aigburth's residents.

Living later life well

When you think of a care home, what springs to mind?

Life at Aigburth is vibrant and engaging and each day is different, offering residents a variety of activities to inspire joy and connection.

From baking and crafts to brain training quizzes and live music sessions, there's always something to enjoy and join in with, if you want to.

Gillian's piano performances and staff-led guitar sessions are favourites, filling the home with warmth music and memories. The local community plays an important role in Aigburth life.

Visits from nurseries, pop-up clothing shops, and the University of Leicester students ensure a connection to the world beyond the home. The community comes to us, but we also venture out into the community. Residents are always ready to be included into the sociable outings to pubs, town centres, and local landmarks.

My mum was well looked after, made great connections with the staff, even though she was only there a short time.
