Overlooking Coopers Hill and close to Witcombe Reservoirs, the home offers stunning natural views and tranquil surroundings. The building has a rich history, having previously been a social club. Today, it is a modern, purpose-built care home that feels like a family. Residents can relax in the sensory nature walkway or spot wildlife like foxes, badgers, and deer in the grounds.

Inside, Brockworth House features bright communal spaces designed to encourage connection and comfort. Its central location, just off the A46, makes it easily accessible for families and visitors, strengthening its community feel.

Here, every detail is designed to create a home where residents are supported, valued, and celebrated, with a dedicated team working to make every day special.

“

I love seeing a smile on the residents' faces, but also the staff, because they are just as important to me as the residents. I love making a difference in the home, especially in people's lives when they are living with dementia.

Lyndsey Dixon, Home Manager

Gardens for all seasons

The gardens at Brockworth House are designed to inspire joy and connection. Landscaped with care, the outdoor spaces feature secure pathways, a sensory walkway, and raised garden beds, allowing residents to safely enjoy the beauty of nature.

Residents and their families love spending time in the garden, whether it's planting flowers in the raised beds or tending to vegetables in the potting shed. The space also includes areas designed for visiting grandchildren, ensuring everyone can enjoy quality time together.

The garden's wildlife adds to its charm, with deer, foxes, and birds often spotted by residents. Seasonal activities, such as garden parties and BBQs, bring the outdoor space to life, offering moments of celebration and laughter.

For quieter moments, the garden provides peaceful corners for reflection or a chat over tea. At Brockworth House, the gardens aren't just outdoor spaces - they're places where connections grow, and memories are made.
